Government 310L American Government Honors Unique # 38595

Fall 2012 TR 9:30-10:45 BAT 5.102 Professor Albertson Office: Batts 4.124 balberts@austin.utexas.edu

Office Hours:

Monday 1-4 and by appt.

This course provides an introduction to American politics. The course topics include an introduction to America's constitutional foundations, the relationship between the mass public and politics (public opinion and participation), the role of intermediary organizations (interest groups, media, parties), and the function of institutions (Congress, Presidency, Courts). In addition to mastering a set of basic facts about American government, students will learn theories addressing "big questions" in American politics, and will explore critical assessments of the evidence brought to bear on these questions. Some of these topics will also be examined in the context of Texas politics.

Readings:

Fiorina, Peterson, Johnson and Mayer. 2011. The New American Democracy, Alternate 7th Ed. Pearson. (NAD)

Supplemental readings available on Blackboard.

One note of the supplemental reading: They are a mix of traditional political science and opinion pieces. Please note that opinion pieces are included because they apply ideas from political science to a contemporary issue in an interesting way.

Assessment:

75%: 3 in class exams (25% each) 15% Short paper (5-7 page) 5%: 3 in class writing exercises

5% Class participation

Exams:

The exams are NOT cumulative. Exams will contain a mix of multiple-choice questions, identification of terms, and short essays.

Short paper:

A detailed paper prompt will be posted by the second week of the course, and the paper is due in class on November 6 – Election day. This will be a busy period in our class, so I cannot recommend enough – plan ahead.

In Class Writing Exercises:

Several times during the course I will pose a question to the class and ask you to get out a piece of paper and write a paragraph (1/2 page). These are opportunities for you to express your opinion about a question relevant to our course and for me to learn more about your ideas. A thoughtful response will earn the writer full credit (2 points), a messy, incomplete response will earn half credit (1 point), and no response will earn no credit. The dates for these writing exercises will not be announced in advance. I understand that your lives are busy and complicated. However, I cannot offer "make ups" for this portion of the course. Therefore, I will offer at least 5 opportunities to earn these points. Students who write in class exercises for more than 3 will receive a point extra credit on the last exam for each additional assignment (maximum 2).

Extra Credit: I encourage students to learn more about politics by attending some of the many political events on campus, and offer extra credit for students who 1) attend the event and 2) write up a one page, double spaced report. The report should describe what you've learned at the event, and explain whether it complements or challenges anything you've learned so far in class.

Eligible events: I will announce political events on campus that are eligible for this opportunity. If you hear about something happening on campus, great! Let me know in advance and I will announce it to the class. Political events that have not been announced to the entire class are NOT eligible as an extra credit opportunity. Events with a specific political agenda are eligible, and I do not restrict events on the basis of political content.

Extra credit limit: Please attend as many events as you'd like. However, each report is worth 2 points, and I limit extra credit points to 2 per exam.

Grading:

Class Policies:

Power Point Slides: Power Point slides will be posted on Blackboard.

Review Sheets: I'll post a review sheet for each chapter on Blackboard. These are meant to help you focus your studies on the most important topics -- WARNING simply memorizing a short definition for each of the terms WILL NOT leave you prepared for the exam.

Disability Accommodations: Students will disabilities may request appropriate academic accommodations from the Division of Diversity and Community Engagement, Services for Students with Disabilities, 471-6259, http://www.utexas.edu/diversity/ddce/ssd/. If you require accommodation, it is your responsibility to bring your note to me EARLY in the semester so we can work out arrangements.

Academic Integrity: Plagiarism, cheating, and other academic misconduct are serious violations of your contract as a student. Plagiarism is using someone else's language without quotations and attribution or using someone else's idea (even in different language) without attribution. We expect that you will know and follow the University's policies on cheating and plagiarism. If you are unsure about the standards of academic integrity, it is your responsibility to ask the professor or the t.a. Any suspected cases of academic misconduct will be handled according to University regulations. A copy of the University's Honor Code can be found here: http://registrar.utexas.edu/catalogs/gi09-10/ch01/index.html.

Make-up Policy: Full credit make-up exams will only be allowed for (1) University sanctioned events (verification required) (2) extraordinary circumstances (verification -- e.g., physician's note -- required) or (3) religious observances. Make-up exams are any exams taken before or after the scheduled exam time. Make-up exams requested for any other reason will be decided on a case by case basis, and will be subject to a 10% grade penalty. I do not approve make-up exams under any circumstances for vacations or early departure for breaks. Make-up exams will be given within one week of the exam and will be offered at only one time. If you know you are going to miss an exam, notify me as soon as possible BEFORE the exam – no later than 14 days prior to the exam date. Students who miss exams without prior notification will face a 20% grade penalty, and will be given the chance to participate in the make-up ONLY if they contact me before the make-up administration.

Emergency Evacuation Policy: In the event of a fire or other emergency, it may be necessary to evacuate a building rapidly. Upon the activation of a fire alarm or the announcement of an emergency in a university building, all occupants of the building are required to evacuate and assemble outside. Once evacuated, no one may re-enter the building without instruction to do so from the Austin Fire Department, University of Texas at Austin Police Department, or Fire Prevention Services office. Students should familiarize themselves with all the exit doors of each room and building they occupy at the university, and should remember that the nearest exit routes may not be the same as the way they typically enter buildings. Students requiring assistance in evacuation shall inform their instructors in writing during the first week of class. Faculty members must then provide this information to the Fire Prevention Services office by fax (512-232-2759), with "Attn. Mr. Roosevelt Easley" written in the subject line.

Professor's Pet Peeves:

#1) Cheating: I haven't caught a UT student cheating in my 310 class yet -- don't be the first! #2) Talking during lecture: I encourage you to engage in class discussion - ask questions, and volunteer when I ask questions. However, I ask that you do not engage in side discussions during lecture.
