- Lockyer, Tudor and Stuart Britain, chapters 11-13, 17
- Hunt, The Puritan Moment

The second exam will be given on Thursday, April 7, and will cover the following material:

The third exam will be given on Thursday May 5, and will cover the following material:

- Laslett, Locke’s Two Treatises of Government, pp. 267-428

Each of the exams will consist of five short essays (10 points each) and one long essay (50 points). The grade for each of the exams will count for roughly 25% of the course grade.

Regularly scheduled make-up exams are not given in this course. Students who miss an examination and do not have a legitimate excuse (e.g., a note from a doctor) will receive a failing grade for that examination. Students who have legitimate excuses should see the instructor to make alternative arrangements.

Students with disabilities may request appropriate academic accommodations from the Division of Diversity and Community Engagement, Services for Students with Disabilities, 471-6259.

PAPERS
Each student is required to submit a final essay or term paper. The essay will consist of an answer to one of two or three questions that will be distributed about two weeks before the end of the semester. The purpose of the essay (which should be 6-8 pages in length) will be to develop your thoughts on one of the main problems with which the course is concerned. In preparing your essay you will be expected to use the lectures and required readings, but you will be able to do so in any way you see fit. You may also consult additional material, such as the recommended reading, but you will not be required to do so. Instead of writing the final essay you may write a term paper on any aspect of seventeenth-century English history. If you decide to write a paper (which should be approximately 10 pages in length), you must notify the instructor by April 5 and obtain his approval of a topic. The grade you receive for the essay or the paper will count for roughly 25% of the course grade. Essays and papers must be submitted by 5 p.m. on Wednesday, May 11, the day on which a final exam would have been scheduled.

Plus grades but not minus grades will be assigned in this course.
