Thinking Like a Historian is a lower division seminar for History majors/potential majors. This seminar aims to train students to read, write and think like historians and to understand history as a professional discipline. The class will introduce students to history research as a professional discipline: research methods, types of sources, historiography, and structure of research papers. Students will read a wide range of primary sources, examine how different historians have developed competing interpretations of particular topics, and develop the framework for a research project.

Requirements:

1) Conscientious reading and active, informed participation. Students will take turns as discussion starters. You cannot participate if you do not attend class, so every unexcused absence after the first two will result in a penalty of three points off the participation grade. Please note, however, that attendance is the only the first prerequisite for participation, so that perfect attendance and complete silence will result in a poor grade. You should read the assigned material for each day before coming to class.
2) Writing: three short response papers based on the readings structured around key questions for historians, and a detailed research paper outline.
3) Group projects on primary sources for oral presentations and a written product.

Notes:

* The instructor reserves the right to make changes in the syllabus.

* If you need any accommodation under the provisions of the ADA act, please inform the instructor as soon as possible.

* Students are expected to uphold irreproachable standards of academic integrity. I will assign the penalty of a 0 score for any form of academic dishonesty (cheating, plagiarism etc). The Office of the Dean of Students maintains an excellent website about academic honesty policies at UT. See www.utexas.edu/depts/dos/sjs.
Note: NO website may be used for papers or projects in this class without the explicit permission of the instructor. Any such unauthorized use constitutes academic dishonesty. Unauthorized use of websites for papers or projects will result in a 0 score.
* Email: I am a good email correspondent and you are welcome to email me. Please note, however, that all emails should include the appropriate form of greeting and be signed with your name. I will not reply to any emails that do not include these essential courtesies.

Grading:
