I. COURSE DESCRIPTION.
This writing-intensive, upper-division seminar introduces the intellectual history of medieval Europe through the topic of the origins of the cosmos. By reading authors from Plato to Galileo, and by considering a variety of religious traditions, students investigate the rich variety of responses to the idea of Creation. In conversation, students explore together the implications of arguments about Creation for early developments in western theology, science, and philosophy. Short response papers and small group work help students learn to articulate their responses fully. Three graduated essays build a capacity for sustained analysis. Objectives. By the end of the semester, you will be able to describe how premodern efforts to understand Genesis 1-3 affected developments in science, philosophy, and theology. You will have written short preparatory essays leading to a research-essay that deepens your knowledge in a specialized area and develops your analytic skills.

*Although this course has no prerequisites and assumes no prior knowledge of the subject, students are presumed to be capable of critical reflection upon both lectures and readings.

II. FORMAT AND PROCEDURES.
A. Writing. Readings and discussions are structured to support students’ written work. To help improve your writing, take advantage of office hours for one-on-one tutoring. There are no exams.

B. Discussion. The success of a seminar depends on discussion: do not expect lectures. Discussion cannot go well unless everyone has completed the reading thoughtfully and on time. Pop quizzes may be used to monitor student preparedness.

C. Learning. Every student has the right to learn in a supportive environment. Turn off your cellphones. Your laptop may be used only for taking notes or for professor-directed web-surfing. Keep the volume turned off.

D. Integrity. Any form of cheating, including plagiarism, violates the Honor Code at UT Austin. What is plagiarism?

See: http://www.lib.utexas.edu/services/instruction/learningmodules/plagiarism/
Infringements will result, at a minimum, in a zero for the assignment, and may be extended to include failure of the course and University disciplinary action.
See: http://deanofstudents.utexas
III. COURSE REQUIREMENTS.

A. Course readings.

1. Purchase (p) these books online or through University Coop, or use copies on reserve (r) in PCL.

   Plato, Timaeus, tr. Zeyl (p, r)
   Augustine, Two Commentaries on Genesis, tr. Teske (p, r, also ebook)
   Peter Lombard, The Sentences Book 2 On Creation, tr. Silano (p, r)

2. Other readings are available in a packet (k) at IT Copy.

3. Some optional readings are posted on Blackboard (b). Look under ‘Course Documents.’ The following are available in PCL reserves:

   Geller and Schipper, eds., Imagining Creation
   Global collection of creation stories & studies of them

B. Attendance, homework, and participation.

1. I expect your regular, on-time attendance; your thorough, on-time preparation of all assignments; and your respectful, engaged participation in every class discussion or small-group activity.

2. You are allowed two absences with no questions asked. Note, however, that any written work due on those days must be submitted on schedule. After that, unexcused absences adversely affect your grade. Excused absences require a note to the professor ahead of time insofar as possible. For unexpected absences due to illness or accident, notify me of your situation as soon as possible and document it immediately on return.

3. By UT-Austin policy, you must notify me of your pending absence for a religious holy day at least two weeks in advance. If you miss a an assignment for the observance, I will give you an opportunity to complete the missed work.

4. Please let me know as soon as possible for academic accommodation. Provide a letter from Services for Students with Disabilities (SSD) at 471-6259 (voice) or 1-866-329-3986 (video phone). See: http://deanofstudents.utexas.edu/ssd/

Other information required or recommended by the University:

This course carries the Writing Flag. Writing Flag courses are designed to give students experience with writing in an academic discipline. In this class, you can expect to write regularly during the semester, complete substantial writing projects, and receive feedback from your instructor to help you improve your writing. You will also have the opportunity to revise one or more assignments, and to read and discuss your peers' work. You should therefore expect a substantial portion of your grade to come from your written work.

Policy on Blackboard (bb). In this class I use bb to distribute course materials, to communicate online, to post grades, and to administer the midterm course survey. Keep your email address current, so that messages sent from bb reach you.

See: http://utexas.edu/its/policies/emailnotify.html

Academic integrity. University of Texas Honor Code

The core values of the University of Texas at Austin are learning, discovery, freedom, leadership, individual opportunity, and responsibility. Each member of the university is expected to uphold these values through integrity, honesty, trust, fairness, and respect towards peers and community.

Behavior Concerns Advice Line (BCAL). If you are worried about someone who is acting differently, you may use the Behavior Concerns Advice Line to discuss by phone your concerns about another individual’s behavior. This service is provided through a partnership among the Office of the Dean of Students, the Counseling and Mental Health Center (CMHC), the Employee Assistance Program (EAP), and The University of Texas Police Department (UTPD). Call 512-232-5050 or visit http://www.utexas.edu/safety/bcal

Emergency Evacuation Policy. Occupants of buildings on the UT Austin campus are required to evacuate and assemble outside when a fire alarm is activated or an announcement is made. Please be aware of the following policies regarding evacuation: Familiarize yourself with all exit doors of the classroom and the building. Remember that the nearest exit door may not be the one you used when you entered the building.
