This course will introduce students to the history of political development in Russia from 1917 to the present. The course will be divided into two parts: 1) an overview of the Soviet period, which ended with the introduction of radical reform under Mikhail Gorbachev and the subsequent disintegration of the Soviet Union; and 2) a discussion of the multiple challenges of state-building, democratization, and radical market reform facing the new post-Soviet Russian state. During the 1990s many thought that Russia was on a route toward democratic consolidation, market reform, and integration with the West. However, with the ascendance of Vladimir Putin as president, Russia has experienced a reemergence of authoritarianism, state control of the economy, and confrontation with the United States. As the 21st century begins, the country appears to be on a very precarious course away from communism but toward an uncertain future. This course will seek to shed light on one of the most dramatic and important political, economic, and social transformations in recent history.

Prerequisite: upper-division standing and six hours of lower-division coursework in Government.

COURSE REQUIREMENTS:

The written requirements of the course will consist of two midterm take-home essays and two midterm exams. There will be no final exam. Please note the due date of all papers and tests. Make-up exams will be granted only for medical emergencies with a doctor's note. Late assignments will be severely penalized. Those unable to meet the requirements of the class on the dates set should not take the course. Academic dishonesty is taken very seriously and will be dealt with according to University rules. All written work is to be done individually.

Accommodations

The University of Texas at Austin provides upon request appropriate academic accommodations for qualified students with disabilities. For more information, contact the Office of the Dean of Students at 471-6259, 471-6441 TTY.

Academic Integrity

Students who violate University rules on scholastic dishonesty are subject to disciplinary penalties, including the possibility of failure in the course and/or dismissal from the University. Since such dishonesty harms the individual, all students, and the integrity of the University, policies on scholastic dishonesty will be strictly enforced. For further information please visit the Student Judicial Services Web site: http://deanofstudents.utexas.edu/sjs. Refer to the Dean of Students Student Judicial Services website or call 471-2841 for the official university policies and procedures on scholastic dishonesty.

Religious Holidays

A student who misses classes or other required activities, including examinations, for the observance of a religious holy day should inform the instructor as far in advance of the absence as possible, so that arrangements can be made to complete an assignment within a reasonable time after the absence.
LECTURE SCHEDULE AND READINGS

Students should complete the readings in preparation for the lectures on that issue. The reading load averages 75-100 pages per week. Students should also keep track of current events in Russia by following a major national newspaper such as the New York Times or Washington Post. Current news items related to issues in class will be posted on Blackboard and should be treated as required course readings. Please arrive to class on time.
