SYLLABUS

E 362L The British Novel in the Twentieth Century: We will begin our study of the modern British novel with Sons and Lovers by D. H. Lawrence, who uses the form of the bildungsroman to chart the psychological and sexual parameters of British working class culture. “High Modernist” Virginia Woolf’s To the Lighthouse traces the complex interrelationships of a family affected by the tyranny and blessings of love with the background of great historical flux. Jean Rhys’s Voyage in the Dark is a naturalistic study of a young woman from the Caribbean who struggles to survive in the predatory man’s world of England in the 1930s. John Fowles’ The Collector explores issues of class and psychological deviancy in the 1950s, and Patrick McGrath’s Asylum is a chilling tale of “morbid sexual obsession.” Finally, Sebastian Faulks’ Birdsong is a profoundly moving modern recreation of the most significant historical event in twentieth century British history, the Great War (1914-1918). Through these selected voices we will learn much about both the trajectory of the novel art form as well as aspects of British class and culture. Prerequisite: Nine semester hours of course work in English or rhetoric or writing. The subject of each class meeting may be determined from the assigned reading for the day (see following). The instructor retains the right to vary this syllabus.
