Course Description:

This course is an introduction to Cultural Anthropology. It is designed to introduce students to the central concepts, theories, and techniques employed by cultural anthropologists to explore the social and cultural dimensions of human experience. The course is organized around central questions in the study of human societies, including: the anthropological idea of progress; language and symbolism; gender and race; power and resistance; nationalism; and modernization, globalization and post-modernism.

This course carries the flag for Cultural Diversity in the United States. Cultural Diversity courses are designed to increase your familiarity with the variety and richness of the American cultural experience. You should therefore expect a substantial portion of your grade to come from assignments covering the practices, beliefs, and histories of at least one U.S. cultural group.

The instructor’s aim is for students to emerge from the course with an enhanced understanding of their own experiences as social and cultural beings, an awareness of the diversity and complexity of cultures and societies, an awareness of the historical structures of power that shape both the practice and representation of culture, and an awareness of various approaches to communication, interpretation, and representation across cultures. The development of critical and analytical thinking skills is also a central aim of this course. Readings, lectures, group activities, and films all work together to develop these skills and equip students to better understand, interpret and navigate the complexities of distinct cultures and societies, including their own.

Course Requirements and Grading:

Success in this course involves mastering both the concepts and the methodology of the cultural anthropologist. Thus, students will be asked to do certain things as well as display certain knowledge. As this is a class based on active participation of all students, students can expect a steady diet of in-class activities, short writing assignments, and week-by-week forms of evaluation. Students are expected to attend all scheduled classes and section meetings—including media presentations and guest lectures.

There will be two in-class tests for this course (a midterm and an end of term test), and one written paper. Tests may be made up only with the instructor’s permission (which will be given only in the case of documented illnesses or emergencies). The written paper are due on their due dates and will not be accepted after the published due date in the syllabus. The paper must be turned in IN PERSON to your TA—NO emailed assignments will be accepted!

PLEASE NOTE: THERE WILL BE AN EXAM GIVEN DURING OUR FINAL EXAM SLOT, on May 14th, from 9:00am-12:00pm. DO NOT SCHEDULE A PLANE TICKET OR LEAVE TOWN BEFORE THIS DATE!

CLASS LECTURES: Students are expected to attend class regularly. Exercises and discussions in section meetings will assume you have heard the lecture materials and completed the assigned readings. There will be 10 “pop quizzes” throughout the semester during the M-W lecture classes, which will be worth 10% of your final grade.

ATTENDANCE AND PARTICIPATION: (35%): Every student will be assigned a section with obligatory meetings each week. Attendance will be taken, and regular exercises will be submitted and discussed in section. Attendance and participation—through in class discussion, weekly discussion blogs, lecture quizzes, and class presentations-- will constitute 35% of your semester grade.

Discussion blog posts are worth 10% of your final grade. Most weeks, your TA will formulate a question/prompt in the discussion section of your blackboard which relates to your readings/topic for the week. There will be ten blogs total, which will each count 1% of your final grade. You will get a point for turning the blog in on time; no points for a late or missed blog. All blog entries are due by 5pm the day before your section.

Lecture attendance is worth 10% of your final grade. Because of the large number of students enrolled in this class, your lecture attendance grade will be based on 10 pop quizzes that will be given during lecture on either Monday or Wednesday throughout the semester. There will be NO make ups for these quizzes; you will receive credit for correctly answering the pop quiz question which will be based on that week’s reading or topic.

Section attendance and participation is worth 15% of your grade. You are allowed one unexcused section absence without penalty. After that, each unexcused absence in your section class will count for 2 points off of your final grade), up to 5 absences. If you miss more than 5 sections, you will also be docked your full participation grade as well.

The final 5% of your Section Meeting grade is based on your in-class participation. TAs will keep track of your participation including both the number of times you contribute to discussion and the quality of your contributions. If you contribute something to each section you will get 3 of 5 points; if your contributions are particularly insightful and/or reflect a good grasp of the readings and materials, you will get 4 points points. If you bring something from a newspaper article, magazine, or virtual source to your section that is relevant to the week’s topic, and also contribute meaningfully, you will get the full 5 points.

The section you are assigned is listed on your registration materials by unique number, and is also available through the Blackboard. You must attend the section for which you are officially enrolled. If you need to change sections for any reason, you must go through the University administrative system for changing courses.

FILMS: The written text materials and ethnographies will be supplemented with a variety of ethnographic and other films and media clips. These will be shown during class, and most are also available for viewing in the UGL Audio-Visual Collection (FAC, 3rd floor). Some are only available in the Department of Anthropology and you must arrange with your T.A. to view these if you need to do so outside of class.

TESTS (50%): This portion of your grade consists of your midterm and end of term exam. The midterm exam will be given on a regular class day, and the final exam will be given during the regular three hour final exam period. The course final will only cover material from the second half of the course (after spring break). Each test (the midterm and the final) will include both multiple choice questions, fill in the blank questions, short answer questions, and one longer essay on the ethnography we have read in class. Questions will include material covered in the assigned readings, lectures, discussions, and films. Make-up exams will only be given in the event of a serious illness or emergency, for which official documentation is required. Each exam is worth 25% of your final grade.

WRITTEN PAPER (15%): You will be assigned one paper topic during the second half of the semester. This paper should be between 5-6 pages in length. It must be typed, double spaced, stapled, and brought to your section meeting on or before the due date posted in your syllabus. The paper is worth 15% of your overall course grade. It will have several cumulative components, each of which will be graded separately, including a fieldwork component, a data gathering/research component, and an analysis component.

GRADING: Grades for each assignment will carry the following weight toward your final grade for the course. Your final grade will be based on the University’s +/- system of grading:

Required Course Readings

Required readings include three textbooks, as well as a small number of articles or book chapters. All required textbooks will be available in the University Co-op Bookstore. All required articles will be available on Blackboard under Course Documents. The required textbooks include:

You will also be required to purchase a clicker for in-class use in our lecture class.

UNIVERSITY POLICIES

Scholastic Dishonesty: Students are required to do their own research and work. All students are responsible for knowing the standards of academic honesty: http://deanofstudents.utexas.edu/sjs/scholdis.php. Plagiarism, using research without citations or using a created production without crediting a source, is forbidden; will result in a grade of zero for the assignment or for the class, or even expulsion from the university, depending on the severity of the plagiarism. This applies to any non-credited websites as well as written sources!

According to the Merriam-Webster Online Dictionary, to "plagiarize" means

- to steal and pass off (the ideas or words of another) as one's own.
- to use (another's production) without crediting the source.
- to commit literary theft.
- to present as new and original an idea or product derived from an existing source.

In other words, plagiarism is an act of fraud. It involves both stealing someone else's work and lying about it afterward.

All of the following are considered plagiarism:

- turning in someone else's work as your own.
- copying words or ideas from someone else without giving credit, including from a website.
- failing to put a quotation in quotation marks.
- giving incorrect information about the source of a quotation.
- changing words but copying the sentence structure of a source without giving credit.
- copying so many words or ideas from a source that it makes up the majority of your work, whether you give credit or not.

- Most cases of plagiarism can be avoided, however, by citing sources. Simply acknowledging that certain material has been borrowed, and providing your readers with the information necessary to find that source, is usually enough to prevent plagiarism. Web site for more information:
  - http://www.lib.utexas.edu/services/instruction/learningmodules/plagiarism

Documented Disability Statement: Students with disabilities may request appropriate academic accommodations from the Division of Diversity and Community Engagement, Services for Students with Disabilities at 471-6259 (voice) or 232-2937 (video phone) or http://www.utexas.edu/diversity/ddce/ssd. Students need to inform the instructor and the teaching assistant(s) about their disability right at the beginning of the semester.

Incompletes: A grade of "I" is only given in cases of documented emergency or special circumstances late in the semester, provided that you have been making satisfactory progress. A grade contract must be completed and the criteria adhered to, in order to fulfill the requirements to take an incomplete. Please note that you must have some written documentation of your reasons for the incomplete—either from a parent, a counselor, a doctor, or some other official in charge of your mental or physical welfare.

Withdrawals: Students are responsible for finding out the appropriate dates for dropping the course and/or withdrawing without penalties.
Use of Blackboard and Electronic Reserves
The course has a Blackboard website which will be demonstrated during the first week of the class in your section. It includes the syllabus, any instructions or announcements to students, an electronic gradebook and access to all required article readings. Students in the class are responsible for checking this Blackboard site regularly, which you can access by clicking on “Blackboard” under “Popular Sites” on the upper left side of the UT home page. Students are also responsible for regularly checking the e-mail account that is registered with the University. All e-mails to the professor or teaching assistants should either be done through Blackboard, or include “ANT 302” in the subject line; otherwise they may inadvertently be missed. Your weekly discussion blogs will be posted on the Blackboard account for your individual section (by unique number). All other communication—including the syllabus, any announcements, assignments, and class readings, will be found under a Blackboard account that has the word MASTER in it for our semester: (15SP) ANT 302 MASTER.

Schedule of Lectures and Reading Assignments
