GOV 336M: GOVERNMENT AND POLITICS OF RUSSIA

This course will introduce students to the history of political development in Russia from 1917 to the present. The course will be divided into two parts: 1) an overview of the Soviet period, which ended with the introduction of radical reform under Mikhail Gorbachev and the subsequent disintegration of the Soviet Union; and 2) a discussion of the multiple challenges of state-building, democratization, and radical market reform facing the new post-Soviet Russian state. During the 1990s many thought that Russia was on a route toward democratic consolidation, market reform, and integration with the West. However, with the ascendance of Vladimir Putin as president, Russia has experienced a reemergence of authoritarianism, state control of the economy, and confrontation with the United States. As the 21st century begins, the country appears to be on a very precarious course away from communism but toward an uncertain future. This course will seek to shed light on one of the most dramatic and important political, economic, and social transformations in recent history.

Prerequisite: upper-division standing and six hours of lower-division coursework in Government.

COURSE REQUIREMENTS:

The written requirements of the course will consist of two midterm take-home essays and two midterm exams. There will be no final exam. Please note the due date of all papers and tests.
