Race, Indigeneity, and Migration

Twenty-seven semester credit hours, including fifteen upper-division and eighteen in residence.

Three semester hours of RIM301: Introduction to Race, Indigeneity and Migration

Nine semester hours of gateway courses:

a. Three hours of Historical Foundations: chosen from AFR 301: Introduction to African American Studies or AAS 301: Introduction to Asian American Studies or MAS 301: Introduction to Mexican American and Latina/o Studies or HIS 317L/AMS 315: Introduction to American Indian History or WGS 305 Introduction to Women's and Gender Studies or Intro to LGBTQ Studies

b. Three hours of RIM350: Contemporary Issues in Race, Indigeneity and Migration.

Nine semester hours, chosen from an approved list, in one of the following tracks. At least three of these hours must include a course that offers training in “tools”:

a. Critical and comparative race
b. Migration and refugee flows
c. Indigeneity
d. Gender, Sexuality and Justice
e. Teaching Race, Indigeneity and Migration

Six additional semester hours, chosen from any course offered from any of the tracks listed above.

Three hours of the capstone course, RIM 378: Race, Indigeneity and Migration