Academy Fight Song: A Discussion on the Future of Higher Education

The Department of American Studies presents ACADEMY FIGHT SONG: A discussion on the future of higher education with Thomas Frank and John Summers, editors of The Baffler (http://www.thebaffler.com/).

Wednesday, October 30
Avaya Auditorium (POB 2.302)
Reception at 4:30pm
Conversation at 5:00pm

College is the best thing in the world; college is a complete ripoff. How are these two statements compatible? How do they differ? How can we assess the campus battles of this era, which are more focused on money than the niceties of Western Civ and Great Books? And what are we to make of the fact that a college education, which was essentially free for the World War II generation, serves today to fasten the bonds of inescapable indebtedness to an entire generation of students?

JOHN SUMMERS is the editor in chief of The Baffler and founder and president of the Baffler Foundation. He’s the author of an essay collection, Every Fury on Earth, and editor of three collections of cultural criticism: The Politics of Truth: Selected Writings of C. Wright Mills, Dwight Macdonald’s Masscult and Midcult, and James Agee’s Cotton Tenants. He received his PhD in intellectual history from the University of Rochester in 2006. From 2000 to 2007 he taught social studies at Harvard University. He still lives in Cambridge, Massachusetts.

THOMAS FRANK is the founding editor of The Baffler and the Easy Chair columnist at Harper’s. He is the author of five books, including What’s the Matter with Kansas? and Pity the Billionaire, both national bestsellers. He has been a columnist for the Wall Street Journal and a guest columnist for the New York Times. In 2004 he was awarded a Lannan Literary Fellowship for Nonfiction. He received his PhD in history from the University of Chicago and now lives in Bethesda, Maryland.

Cosponsored by the Department of English, Plan II Honors, the Department of Radio-Television-Film, the School of Undergraduate Studies, and the History Department Course Transformation Project.

2013 Texas Conference on Civic Life

The Annette Strauss Institute for Civic Life and the National Conference on Citizenship recently produced the Texas Civic Health Index, the first-ever nonpartisan, state-wide evaluation of political and community engagement in Texas. The study found that Texans may be living with an undiagnosed crisis of civic health.

In 2010, Texas ranked:
- 51st in voter turnout among the 50 states and Washington, D.C.
- 49th in the number of citizens who contacted public officials
- 44th in the number of people who discuss politics
- 44th in the number of people who discuss politics
- 44th in the number of people who discuss politics

We can do better.

Like human bodies, societies can survive with less than optimal health, but sooner or later, the costs of poor civic health will be felt - in decreased government accountability and increased citizen disaffection. The Texas Conference on Civic Life will bring together citizens from across the state and partisan aisles to discuss the future of civic engagement and how we can work together toward greater civic health.

Together, we will put our crisis in context with the help of nationally renowned... experts and scholars and learn from other concerned citizens the innovative methods and tools they use to engage, activate, and inspire.

Reading Aces is an after-school program designed to help at-risk children between the ages of 6-12 improve their reading and literacy skills. Volunteers meet at local community centers once a week to strengthen these valuable life skills. Children may bring homework, but the typical routine is for our volunteers to read orally with the children. It’s a fun, easy, and very rewarding volunteer opportunity.

Flu Shots for Students

Getting a flu shot is the best way to prevent the flu.

The US Centers for Disease Control and Prevention recommend that everyone gets a flu shot every year, unless there are medical reasons they shouldn’t. It takes about two weeks after getting the shot to have optimal protection. Flu season usually starts in October. The flu shot won’t give you the flu, UHS administers the inactivated virus flu vaccine. The viruses in inactivated vaccine have been killed, so you can’t get the flu from the shot.

Insurance billed for: Students with health insurance (except for HMO plans, plans underwritten by insurance companies based outside the United States, or government plans such as Medicare, Medicaid, and Tricare).

NOTE: If your insurance plan won’t pay for a flu shot charge after UHS files a claim, the unpaid balance will be billed your What I Owe. You will be responsible for paying that amount. Insured Students Only - Speed up your flu shot clinic check-in! Enter your insurance information in advance online if you haven't done so for a prior UHS visit at MY UHS: https://portal.uhs.utexas.edu/login_directory.aspx

Students with no insurance, HMO plans, insurance plans with companies based outside of the United States or government plans such as Medicare, Medicaid, and Tricare: $10 charge.

Ghana: Community and Social Development MayMester

Offered as SW 360K / SW 395K / AFR 374 / ANT 324 / WGS 340
Dr. Dorie J. Gilbert, INSTRUCTOR

During the 4-week Maymester (mid May-mid June), students examine the sociocultural history of Ghana including the role of colonialism in influencing the country’s prevailing societal issues. In addition to lectures and excursions to Cape Coast and the ancient Ashanti region, students actively engage in hands-on community service projects working... alongside Ghanaian university peers on service projects in the country’s capital city of Accra. Service projects include helping schools to build libraries, organizing health promotion campaigns, supporting a women’s micro lending program, training youth leaders and young entrepreneurs, and infrastructure building for a boys’ home/orphanage. Students also participate in a reforestation tree-planting project after meeting with local chiefs and queen mothers in rural Ashanti villages.

Over fifty years after gaining its independence, Ghana has recently established new priorities around vigorous infrastructure development and enhanced social and community services. Through this course, students have the opportunity to study Ghanaian social and community development programs and non-governmental organizations (NGOs) that are actively responding to Ghana’s major social service needs in the areas of education, child and family welfare, gender empowerment, youth programs and health promotion.

The course involves both experiential and classroom learning with a significant international academic service learning component that allows students to develop and implement a small-scale volunteer project as a major course assignment. The course content will dovetail with the nature of community service in critical ways to ensure that 1) student learning is enhanced, 2) small-scale community needs are met, and 3) students are able to critically reflect upon their community service experience. In addition, students will take part in educational excursions including tours of the Cape Coast slave fortresses, Kakum National Park, rural villages in the country’s Ashanti region, and the Agogo Village Reforestation Project.

For more information, email Dr. Dorie Gilbert at dgm@mail.utexas.edu

Oxford English Program

The Department of English at The University of Texas at Austin has sponsored a summer program at Oxford since 1984. The Oxford Summer Program gathers students to enjoy life and literature at the University of Oxford, the oldest English-speaking university in the world. In Summer 2014, the Program will be housed in Wadham College. Students take one or two upper-division English classes and enjoy many field trips and theatrical performances. This program is a wonderful balance of academics and fun, an opportunity to get to know Department of English faculty and other students outside the classroom, and a chance to live in an early 17th-century English college in modern-day Oxford.

Study Abroad Maymester in Beijing, China: US-China Relations

Dr. Benjamin Gregg, Government
Application deadline: November 1

Few countries will figure more prominently in America’s future than China. Already an economic powerhouse, China is rapidly emerging as a leading nation and a potential geopolitical rival to the United States. What is the nature of the Sino-American relationship? What are the main sources of tension and competition? How do the Chinese view U.S. ambitions in Asia? What steps might be taken now to foster greater understanding and cooperation in the future?

This course takes up these important questions about the character and direction of U.S.-China relations. Students learn how the relationship has evolved over the past half-century, starting with the 1949 Chinese revolution, running through efforts by Mao and Nixon and their successors to normalize relations in the 1970s and conclude by considering how globalization, September 11th, and the “war on terrorism” have affected the relationship. Students gain a greater appreciation of how Washington and Beijing make foreign policy and, more generally, how great powers define their interests in world politics.

Students have a rare opportunity to learn how Chinese intellectuals and policymakers understand the evolving Sino-American relationship. Scholars from China’s top universities, as well as policy analysts who work at “think tanks” in Beijing, are invited to address the class. Additionally, the group takes course-related excursions in and around Beijing. Students take classes and live at Tsinghua University.

Intern with SI Magazine in NYC while remaining a full-time student.

The program: Sports Illustrated offers a full-time, paid internship, which allows qualified UT students to earn up to six hours of academic credit, depending on internship guidelines in each college or academic unit.

As an intern at Sports Illustrated, your primary job will be as a fact-checker for stories that will appear in the weekly magazine. Your ability to pay strict attention to detail will be crucial, and you’ll apply both research and problem-solving skills while also drawing upon your knowledge of current events. You’ll work a four- to five-day week, depending on your assignments for the Sports Illustrated weekly magazine and Sports Illustrated Presents, which produces commemorative issues. (SI has also welcomed two photo interns from UT, and they have worked mostly for the weekly magazine.)

While at SI, interns will have the opportunity to sit in on weekly editorial meetings and, separately, to brainstorm story ideas to pitch for publication. (Some intern have been published in the SCORECARD section of the magazine and some on Sl.com.)

Enrollment in the College of Communication is not a prerequisite for application to SI. Writing samples, whether from The Daily Texan or from an English, political science or art history class, must be strong. SI looks for hardworking, inquisitive individuals who pride themselves on being precise and on turning in immaculate work. Cover letters and résumés with typos will not be considered.

Qualifications: All UT undergraduate and graduate-level students who meet the eligibility requirements to complete an internship for academic credit may apply. Intern applicants are encouraged to consult with their academic advisers about specific internship requirements and to ensure eligibility for a semester away from campus.

Application deadline and process: Interested candidates should submit the following application materials as PDFs, when applicable. Audio, video and photographic or design work samples should be attached, appropriate to the medium. Incomplete applications will not be considered.

- Cover letter that states why you are interested in interning with Sports Illustrated and what area(s) of journalism you hope to experience as an SI intern
- Professional résumé
- A letter/email of recommendation from a UT faculty member (professor or lecturer, not a teaching assistant)
- A letter/email of recommendation from a current or former internship or job supervisor
- Three work samples that illustrate relevant journalistic skills (writing, editing, layout and design, photo, multimedia, social media, broadcast, etc.)

Submit the application via email to Professor Wanda Cash: wgeash@mail.utexas.edu

Fall internship: first Monday in April
Spring internship: first Monday in October

Submitting to Plan2News
Please keep in mind that although Plan2News enjoys a substantial and diverse readership, its circulation is still relatively small. It should not be relied upon as the sole advertisement for a position or an event. To reach a wider audience, please use university-wide electronic and paper advertising outlets.

Personal and political announcements will not be published in Plan2News. Job and internships announcements must be sent to the Liberal Arts Career Services office, after which they may be considered for publication in the newsletter.

To place a news item in Plan2News, you must do the following:

- Type your news item in the body of an e-mail to planinewsletter@austin.utexas.edu.
- In the subject line, write “Plan2News” exactly.
- Give the name of a contact person with phone number or e-mail address.

Please edit your entries to this length before submission. An overly lengthy entry will be returned to its sender and will not appear until this standard is met.
