

Current Graduate Employment Opportunities

We are providing this listing as a courtesy to our College of Liberal Arts units and students in an effort to facilitate the hire of graduate students into open instructional positions. The following opportunities are currently available within the College. If you are a current Liberal Arts graduate student interested in any of these positions, please email the contact person listed in the announcement directly.

Be sure to include the following in your email to the contact person:

- Your name and UTEID
- Your current program and your first semester in that program
- CV
- Other information requested in the announcement

College units will use this resource at their discretion, and are not obligated to post all or any opportunities. The list below is not meant to be exhaustive, and is not a guarantee of employment. We will update the list as we receive new information, but jobs may fill before the page is updated.

Graduate students seeking employment outside of their degree-offering program will be verified for good academic standing and other eligibility criteria by the hiring department. For eligibility criteria, please consult the Graduate School conditions for student employment.

Department: Germanic Studies

Position: Assistant Instructor

Semester: Fall 2019

Contact: Applications can be emailed to Monica Urso at monicau22@austin.utexas.edu.

Germanic Studies is currently searching for an Assistant Instructor to teach one lower-division German course. It is a 20-hour position and includes in-state tuition with benefits.

A completed application requires a CV and a letter of introduction. The letter should include your EID, your anticipated date of graduation, and details on your German-language experience, especially if it is not apparent in the CV. Any additional supporting documents (letters of recommendation, etc.) are desirable. Finalists will be asked to submit three letters of recommendation.

An excellent applicant will:

- meet the University's criteria for Student Employment (found here: <https://gradschool.utexas.edu/finances/student-employment/conditions>)

- have taken GER 398T or a comparable language-instruction 398T course in residence at UT or similar
- have previous teaching and/or teacher education experiences (one year minimum)
- have excellent interpersonal and communication skills in English and German
- be a reliable team player, able to teach independently and work well with others within a supportive curricular environment

Our department is collegial and highly devoted to the professional development of its instructors. Our AIs receive continuous mentored support in their teaching from faculty and peers.

Applications can be emailed to Monica Urso at monicau22@austin.utexas.edu.
