Grants for Graduate Students

Funding Opportunities in the Liberal Arts

This list of grant opportunities is designed to help graduate students in the College of Liberal Arts at the University of Texas at Austin identify support for the various phases of their graduate careers. It includes 214 grants; 187 support graduate study in the social sciences, and 109 fund work in the humanities. Fifty-one opportunities are open to international students and another 132 state no specific citizenship requirements. The grants cover multiple phases of study including coursework, pre-dissertation research and travel, professional training opportunities, dissertation research, and dissertation writing.

While this list is not intended to be comprehensive, it does represent three years of careful searching for opportunities for Liberal Arts graduate students. We hope you find it useful as one resource in your grant search.

—Liberal Arts Grants Services, August 2014

How to Use this List

Please skim: Only a fraction of the opportunities here will be relevant to any individual student’s specific area of study. The format is designed to be easy to skim so that you can identify these more quickly.

Deadlines: A majority of the opportunities here recur on an annual basis, but in some cases the sponsor had not posted a new deadline at the time the list was compiled. Please use previous year’s deadlines as a guideline and check back with sponsors that interest you for updates.

Some grants may be submitted directly to the sponsor, others require the university to officially approve and submit your grant. In all cases, the deadline listed is the date of required first contact. If the grant will be submitted through Liberal Arts Grants Services, the listed deadline is three weeks in advance of the sponsor’s deadline.

How to apply: Most grants are either submitted directly to the sponsor or through Liberal Arts Grants Services. There are others, however, that require special procedures such as departmental review, approval by the Graduate School, or competitive university-wide review. Please read the “how to apply” section carefully for the grants that interest you and be sure to contact the individuals listed there for additional information, if necessary.

International Students: A handful of grants, especially those funded by the U.S. government, restrict applications to U.S. citizens and permanent residents.

In this list, “Y” indicates that the sponsor accepts applications from international students. In some cases, the sponsor may designate specific nationalities that may apply, or they may require that the international student should be enrolled in a U.S. university at the time of application.

“N” indicates that the sponsor will accept applications from U.S. citizens or permanent residents only.

“Unknown” means that the solicitation was not clear on nationality or citizenship requirements. International students interested in these opportunities should clarify by reading the solicitation carefully and contacting the sponsor if need be.

Discipline: Grants have been marked as Humanities, Social Sciences or both for your convenience. Individual sponsors may have nuanced interpretations of this division, so be sure to read the solicitation carefully to make sure that the sponsor accepts proposals from your discipline.

Some sponsors are more interested in your methodology than your home department—if you use methodological tools from other disciplines (i.e. humanists who use ethnography or linguistic methods, and social scientists who draw on archival research) be sure to consider opportunities in your broader, interdisciplinary base.
Title: Louis Owens Awards for Graduate Student Presenters at WLA Conferences
Sponsor: Western Literature Association (WLA)
Deadline: 09/01/2014
Amount: $500

Description: The WLA honors the great writer and scholar Louis Owens for his contributions to western American and American Indian literary studies and for his unflagging generosity as a colleague, teacher, and mentor. The goal of the Louis Owens Awards is to build for the future of the Western Literature Association by modeling Owens’ own support and encouragement of diverse graduate student engagement in western literature and culture studies. The Owens Awards are intended to foster ever-greater diversity within the WLA membership, to help broaden the field of western American literary studies, and to recognize both graduate student scholarship and financial need. To be eligible for this award, you must be registered as a graduate student at the time of the conference. You are not eligible for this award if you have received it previously.

How to Apply: Submit a paper proposal for participation in the conference by June 15. If your paper is accepted, apply directly to sponsor by September 1. See grant announcement for complete list of materials to be submitted with application.

Title: Public Health Fellowship Program
Sponsor: Association of Schools and Programs of Public Health (ASPPH), Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC)
Deadline: 09/18/2014
Amount: Unspecified

Description: The ASPPH/CDC Public Health Fellowship Program was established in 1995. Its goal is to address emerging needs of public health, and to provide leadership and professional opportunities at the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) for students and graduate students of ASPPH member graduate schools and programs of public health. The fellowships are from one to two years in duration, depending on the needs of CDC and the fellow. The Fellowship Program was established to strengthen the relationship between the academic public health community and public health practice agencies. The types of fellowships will vary according to specific areas of research or training within CDC’s Centers/Institutes/Offices (CIOs). To be eligible, students must have received a MPH or doctorate degree prior to the beginning of the fellowship. Early career professionals with MPH or doctorate degrees (within 5 years of graduation) may also apply for the fellowship program.

Title: Program in China Studies Predissertations Summer Grants
Sponsor: American Council of Learned Societies (ACLS)
Deadline: 10/01/2014
Amount: $5,000

Description: The Henry Luce Foundation/ACLS Program in Studies seeks to maintain the vitality of China Studies in the U.S. through fellowships and grants designed primarily for scholars early in their careers. Predissertation grants provide funding for graduate students to explore venues and make preliminary research arrangements, and to gain advice from potential collaborators regarding subsequent research in China. Application essays must provide the rationale for the research agenda with particular attention to the evidence needed to answer research questions. The essay should present a rational for the need for a summer visit to China prior to dissertation research. It should also provide a plan for travel in China, identifying the individuals, institutions, and sites to be visited. Inclusion of correspondence with potential contacts in China is desirable. A working knowledge of Chinese is required.

Title: Luce Scholars Program Scholarship Competition
Sponsor: Luce Foundation
Deadline: October TBA
Amount: Unspecified

Description: The Luce Scholars Program is a nationally competitive fellowship program. It was launched by the Henry Luce Foundation in 1974 to enhance the understanding of Asia among potential leaders in American society. The program provides stipends, language training, and individualized professional placement in Asia for 15-18 Luce Scholars each year, and welcomes applications from college seniors, graduate students, and young professionals in a variety of fields who have had limited exposure to Asia. The program is unique among American-Asian exchanges in that it is intended for young leaders who have had limited experience of Asia and who might not otherwise have an opportunity in the normal course of their careers to come to know Asia. Those who already have significant experience in Asia or Asian studies are not eligible for the Luce Scholars Program. To be eligible, candidates must be U.S. citizens who would not have reached their 30th birthday by July 1st of the year they enter the program.

Title: Ruth L. Kirschstein National Research Service Award (NRSA) Individual Predoctoral Fellowship to Promote Diversity in Health-Related Research (Parent F31-Diversity) (PA-14-148)
Sponsor: National Institutes of Health (NIH)
Deadline: 11/10/2014
Amount: $22,476/ yr. stipend; $4,200 institutional allowance; tuition

Description: The purpose of this Kirschstein-NRSA predoctoral fellowship (F31) award is to enhance the diversity of the health-related research workforce by supporting the research training of predoctoral students from population groups that have been shown to be underrepresented in the biomedical, behavioral, or clinical research workforce. Such individuals include those from underrepresented racial and ethnic groups, those with disabilities, and those from disadvantaged backgrounds. Through this award program, promising predoctoral students will obtain individualized, mentored research training from outstanding faculty sponsors while conducting well-defined research projects in scientific health-related fields relevant to the missions of the participating NIH Institutes and Centers. The proposed mentored research training must reflect the applicants dissertation research project and is expected to clearly enhance the individuals potential to develop into a productive, independent research scientist. Applicants are encouraged to apply early to allow adequate time to make any corrections to errors found in the application during the submission process by the due date.

How to Apply: Contact your departmental Grants and Contracts Specialist or Liberal Arts Grants Services (lagrants@austin.utexas.edu) and return Proposal Review Form by November 3.

Title: East Asia and Pacific Summer Institutes for U.S. Graduate Students (EASPI) (NSF 13-593)
Sponsor: National Science Foundation (NSF)
Deadline: 11/13/2014
Amount: $5,000

Description: NSF and selected foreign counterpart science and technology agencies sponsor international research institutes for U.S. graduate students in seven East Asia and Pacific locations at times set by the counterpart agencies between June and August each year. The Summer Institutes (EASPI) operate similarly and the research visits to a particular location take place at the same time. Although applicants apply individually to participate in a Summer Institute, awardees become part of the cohort for each location. Applicants must propose a location, host scientist, and research project that is appropriate for the host site and duration of the international visit.

How to Apply: Apply directly to sponsor by November 13. See grant announcement for complete list of materials to be submitted with application.

Disciplines: Humanities, Social Sciences; International Students: Unknown

Title: Dissertation Fellowships
Sponsor: Ford Foundation
Deadline: 11/14/2014
Amount: $25,000

Description: These fellowships provide one year of support for individuals working to complete a dissertation leading to a Doctor of Philosophy (Ph.D.) or Doctor of Science (Sc.D.) degree. The awards will be made to individuals who, in the judgment of the review panels, have demonstrated superior academic achievement, are committed to a career in teaching and research at the college or university level, show promise of future achievement as scholars and teachers, and are well prepared to use diversity as a resource for enriching the education of all students. The foundation is especially interested in applicants who are members of the following underrepresented groups: Alaska natives, Black/African Americans, Mexican Americans/Chicanas/Chicanos, Native American Indians, Native Pacific Islanders, Puerto Ricans.

Title: Mellon Fellowships for Dissertation Research in Original Sources
Sponsor: Council on Library and Information Resources (CLIR) & Andrew W. Mellon Foundation
Deadline: 11/15/2013
Amount: $25,000

Description: The Council on Library and Information Resources (CLIR) is pleased to offer fellowships generously funded by The Andrew W. Mellon Foundation for dissertation research in the humanities or related social sciences in original sources. Traditional proposals for original source research in such fields as history will be welcome and the committee will give preference to sound non-traditional projects in all eligible fields such as those that use newly available or little studied sources, make interdisciplinary use of sources, use sources in innovative, creative ways, use sources in repositories that cannot, themselves, provide financial assistance to researchers. Fellows may propose to work in more than one repository during the fellowship period, including repositories abroad. Preference is given to applicants working away from their home institutions. International students are eligible to apply.

Title: Summer Research Fellowships
Sponsor: University of Texas at Austin, Psychology Department
Deadline: 03/07/2014
Amount: $5,000

Description: This fellowship is designed to provide summer financial support for outstanding graduate students in the Department of Psychology. The number and amount of awards that are made in a given year depend on the number and quality of the applications received. Most awards will be in the amount of $5000, but smaller awards may be awarded. Students who are awarded Summer Research Fellowships will not be eligible for summer TAs. Note, too, that the award is not available to students graduating this spring and students who already have summer support in the form of another fellowship (e.g., NRSA, NSA Fellowship, Continuing Fellowship, etc.).

Funding decisions will be made by a faculty committee. The committee’s funding decisions will be based on: (a) the quality of the proposed research, (b) the student’s progress in the program, and (c) the student’s financial need.

How to Apply: Contact Kimberly Terry (terry@austin.utexas.edu), Graduate Coordinator in the Department of Psychology, for application guidelines.

Title: Dissertation Fieldwork Grants
Sponsor: Wenner-Gren Foundation
Deadline: 04/10/2014
Amount: $20,000

Description: Dissertation Fieldwork Grants are awarded to aid doctoral or thesis research. The program contributes to the Foundation’s overall mission to support basic research in anthropology and to ensure that the discipline continues to be a source of vibrant and significant work that furthers our understanding of humanity’s cultural and biological origins, development, and variation. The Foundation supports research that demonstrates a clear link to anthropological theory and debates, and promises to make a solid contribution to advancing these ideas. There is no preference for any methodology, research location, or subfield. The Foundation particularly welcomes proposals that employ a comparative perspective, can generate innovative approaches or ideas, and/or integrate two or more subfields. Students must be enrolled in a doctoral program (or equivalent, if applying from outside the United States) at the time of application. Students of all nationalities are eligible to apply.

Title: Creative Community Fellowships
Sponsor: National Arts Strategies (NAS)
Deadline: 05/07/2014
Amount: Unspecified

Description: We believe that arts and culture are vital to community life. We also believe that community is vital to arts and culture. We've built the Creative Community Fellows program for leaders working at the intersection of culture and community. These individuals are using culture to respond to local needs and contribute to healthy neighborhoods. We will give them tools, training and access to others working in this space. This combination will fuel their visions for community change, sparking new ideas and helping put them into action. We will also provide a platform for Fellows to connect their work to their communities and to the field. This will create a global dialogue about the ways in which culture can restore and animate communities.

The Hearst Fellow serves as an intern with Program on Philanthropy and Social Innovation (PSI) in the Washington, D.C., office of the Aspen Institute. Through the fellowship program, PSI seeks to introduce a diverse group of students to issues and challenges affecting philanthropy, social enterprise, nonprofit organizations, and other actors in the social sector. In his or her internship, the Hearst Fellow undertakes research, writing, and logistical and administrative support for PSI’s leadership initiatives, public programs, and convenings. Recipients may arrange with their colleges or universities to receive academic credit for this experience.

Title: Doctoral Dissertation Research Service Award (NRSA) Individual Predoctoral Fellowship to Promote Diversity in Health-Related Research (Parent F31-Diversity) (PA-14-148)
Sponsor: National Institutes of Health (NIH)
Deadline: 07/23/2014
Amount: $22,476/ yr. stipend; $4,200 institutional allowance; tuition

Description: The purpose of this Kirschstein-NRSA predoctoral fellowship (F31) award is to enhance the diversity of the health-related research workforce by supporting the research training of predoctoral students from population groups that have been shown to be underrepresented in the biomedical, behavioral, or clinical research workforce. Such individuals include those from underrepresented racial and ethnic groups, those with disabilities, and those from disadvantaged backgrounds. Through this award program, promising predoctoral students will obtain individualized, mentored research training from outstanding faculty sponsors while conducting well-defined research projects in scientific health-related fields relevant to the missions of the participating NIH Institutes and Centers. The proposed mentored research training is expected to clearly enhance the individuals potential to develop into a productive, independent research scientist. Applicants are encouraged to apply early to allow adequate time to make any corrections to errors found in the application during the submission process by the due date.

Title: Doctoral Dissertation Research Improvement Grants (DDRIGs) in Archeology (NSF 11-547)
Sponsor: National Science Foundation (NSF)
Deadline: Open
Amount: $20,000

Description: Grants to doctoral students are intended to improve the quality of dissertation research. These grants provide funds for items not normally available through the student’s university. Additionally, these grants allow doctoral students to undertake significant data-gathering projects and to conduct field research in settings away from their campus that would not otherwise be possible. Proposals are judged on the basis of their scientific merit, including the theoretical importance of the research question and the appropriateness of the proposed data and methodology to be used in addressing the question. The NSF Archeology Program constitutes part of a larger Anthropological Sciences cluster and its focus is limited to research of clear anthropological significance. In a proposal the students should describe why their research is important from an anthropological perspective. *Note: NSF DDRIGs now require indirect costs be included in the budget. For the Archeology competition, indirect costs may be calculated in addition to $20,000 budget max.

How to Apply: Applications accepted on a rolling basis. Contact your departmental Grants and Contracts Specialist or Liberal Arts Grants Services (lagrants@austin.utexas.edu) and return Proposal Review Form three weeks before you plan to submit to NSF.

Title: Expeditions Council Grants
Sponsor: National Geographic Society
Deadline: Open
Amount: $15,000-$35,000

Description: The National Geographic Society is accepting applications for editorially driven exploration and adventure projects through its Expeditions Council grants program. To be considered for an Expeditions Council grant, proposed projects must have the potential to yield compelling stories and images. Applications are also judged on the qualifications of applicants and their teams, and on the project’s merit, uniqueness, and safety protocols. Although the council, which comprises representatives of various National Geographic editorial divisions, funds a broad range of exploration and adventure, applicants with a project based on scientific inquiry must provide detailed methodology. Applicants are expected to have qualifications and experience pertinent to the expedition or project they propose. Advanced academic degrees may be required, depending on the nature of the project. Those planning work in foreign countries (i.e., a country other than their own) must include at least one local collaborator as part of their expedition team. International applicants are encouraged; however, applications must be submitted in English.

How to Apply: Applications accepted on a rolling basis. Contact your departmental Grants and Contracts Specialist or Liberal Arts Grants Services (lagrants@austin.utexas.edu) and return Proposal Review Form three weeks before you plan to submit to the sponsor.
