Dr. Geoffrey Megargee received his doctorate in military history in 1998 from the Ohio State University. He has written extensively on Hitler and the German high command during WWII and on the connection between military planning, warfare, and genocide on the Eastern Front. He is the recipient of several honors for this body of work and served as a Presidential Counselor for the National World War II Museum in New Orleans.

Currently, Dr. Megargee is the Senior Applied Research Scholar in the Center for Advanced Holocaust Studies, United States Holocaust Memorial Museum, where he is the project director and editor-in-chief for the Museum's eight-volume Encyclopedia of Camps and Ghettos, 1933-1945. The first volume of that work appeared in June 2009 and received a National Jewish Book Award and a Judaica Reference Award, among other distinctions.

Sponsors: Department of History, Institute for Historical Studies, Schusterman Center for Jewish Studies, Department of Slavic and Eurasian Studies, and the Campus Outreach Lecture Program of the U.S. Holocaust Memorial Museum’s Jack, Joseph and Morton Mandel Center for Advanced Holocaust Studies, supported by the generosity of the Jerome A. Yavitz Charitable Foundation, Inc. and Arlyn S. and Stephen H. Cypen

For more information, please contact Marina Potoplyak marina.potoplyak@gmail.com or Tatjana Lichtenstein lichtens@austin.utexas.edu