America sidelined, barely relevant in Syrian conflict

The war in Syria,Seattle hosted by not a regional conflict, the meeting groups of the Syrian opposition considerate, the radical Shiite bloc led by Iran, 18 were defined by(holder and
and could hardly lift its United States. For two time the United States. For two years, it did nothing.

demoniﬁed by the regime with tens of weaponry and especially, it was launched as a Sunni prominence.

On the other side are the Sunni-based ments that are steadfast in action, Obama will alter the course of the war, or declare that we either do something that under Henry Kissinger.

Their “Shiite crescent,” Vladimir Putin money — the ayatollahs solidifying

whether reported poison gas attacks asics instead, earnestly agonizing over craft, Obama chose to practice forensic,

was his chemical weapons red line.

years, it did nothing.

in Syria was the United States. For two neous, secular, liberationist uprising

Spanish Civil War except that only one fight for them and wish the world were

We have computers, don’t want really want. Our research also and only the half-dozen comic

news you need.

pers aren’t immune. To meet economy is taking a bite out of

you that the slumping

nder the snotty rants of

and Wednesday, if we publish a week. On Monday, Tuesday

stitute, and Wednesday. Our research also

depression in people older

of iran — over which it is ican sway. Iraqi airspace, for example, extremists from Basra all the way north routed. Nouri al-Maliki’s Shiite govern-came to o

a small but powerful residual force counterweight to the Iran-Hezbollah-military intervention in Syria, beyond even Jordan and Lebanon.

Warning: This document contains keywords that may be considered sensitive in some jurisdictions. Do not forward or share without permission.

CHARLES KRAUTHAMMER

America sidelined, barely relevant in Syrian conflict

The war in Syria, hosted by Seattle, is now a regional conflict, the meeting groups of the Syrian opposition consider the radical Shiite bloc led by Iran, while the United States has steadfastly lifted its sanctions against the regime with tens of weaponry and especially, it was launched as a Sunni prominence.

On the other side are the Sunni-based opposition groups that are steadfast in action, Obama will alter the course of the war, or declare that we either do something that under Henry Kissinger.

Their “Shiite crescent,” Vladimir Putin money — the ayatollahs solidifying their influence with tens of billions of dollars — the ayatollahs solidifying their influence with tens of billions of dollars, their “Shiite crescent,” Vladimir Putin money — the ayatollahs solidifying their influence with tens of billions of dollars, their influence with tens of billions of dollars.

whether reported poison gas attacks asics instead, earnestly agonizing over craft, Obama chose to practice forensic, was his chemical weapons red line.

years, it did nothing.

in Syria was the United States. For two years, it did nothing.

neous, secular, liberationist uprising the Spanish Civil War except that only one fight for them and wish the world were

We have computers, don’t want really want. Our research also and only the half-dozen comic

news you need.

pers aren’t immune. To meet
economy is taking a bite out of you that the slumping

nder the snotty rants of

and Wednesday, if we publish a week. On Monday, Tuesday

stitute, and Wednesday. Our research also
depression in people older

of iran — over which it is can sway. Iraqi airspace, for example, extremists from Basra all the way north routed. Nouri al-Maliki’s Shiite government came to power in January 2009, the war raged on.

A U.S. military intervention in Syria, beyond even Jordan and Lebanon, was an illusion.

Warning: This document contains keywords that may be considered sensitive in some jurisdictions. Do not forward or share without permission.

DANIEL GROSSMANN

Restricting access won’t reduce abortion demand

As the legislature debates the merits of several bills that would further restrict access to abortion care in Texas, it’s a good time to pause and reflect on the impact of the restrictions that are already in place. Our research suggests that abortion restrictions in Texas, passed the so-called “single-visit” law in 2011, have led women to change their minds about having an abortion. Instead of a steady flow of women who had deliberated their options, people who were already determined to have an abortion were being driven to have it sooner.

Here’s how it works. Instead of a steady flow of women who had deliberated their options, people who were already determined to have an abortion were being driven to have it sooner.

A woman who is already determined to have an abortion finds that she won’t be able to do it in the state she was planning to go to because of an abortion restriction. Instead of waiting another month or two to have the procedure, she decides to have it as soon as she can.

One of the findings… is that some women may be trying to induce the abortion on their own because of difficulties accessing care in clinics.

One of the findings… is that some women may be trying to induce the abortion on their own because of difficulties accessing care in clinics.

Their psychological and emotional well-being, as one woman interviewed put it, is at stake. And it’s not as if what I learned: That first day of the process and made me more anxnous about the risks. She had experienced a significant increase in the proportion of women who reported difficulty accessing care in the clinics, perhaps because of scheduling delays and longer waiting times, which is consistent with the increased health risks and costs associated with later procedures.

Our research suggests that in order to have an abortion, women must be able to plan it.

One of the findings… is that some women may be trying to induce the abortion on their own because of difficulties accessing care in clinics.

If women can’t access care when they want it, they may resort to more risky procedures, like self-induced abortion. One woman we surveyed told us that she had gone to a clinic to get a abortion but the clinic was too difficult to get to just a week before the scan.

One of the findings… is that some women may be trying to induce the abortion on their own because of difficulties accessing care in clinics.

She was just half a month along when she went to the clinic and they wouldn’t take her. She just didn’t have the money to go back or the time.

One of the findings… is that some women may be trying to induce the abortion on their own because of difficulties accessing care in clinics.

One of the findings… is that some women may be trying to induce the abortion on their own because of difficulties accessing care in clinics.

One of the findings… is that some women may be trying to induce the abortion on their own because of difficulties accessing care in clinics.

One of the findings… is that some women may be trying to induce the abortion on their own because of difficulties accessing care in clinics.